

Marriage and the traps men and women are falling into.

GOD WORLDWIDE

Everything is about living in the Divine Will, everything... The most important thing that we could ever tell our children once they are 12 or 13 years old is this: If you believe that God exists, and you believe that God is your Father; your Creator, yes, but your Father...most important, your Father and you ask God, you give Him your free will and you ask Him on a regular basis, not just once, but on a regular basis as a young woman, or a young man: `Father, I feel in my heart that I´m to be with another person in my life; I feel very strongly that I should have a family, so I´m leaving it up to You to choose for me the person that I will spend the rest of my life with.

People don´t believe in this. They don´t believe that they should do that, they don´t teach their children and their children now, one in every two marriages is failing... for many reasons... but one reason is that we never include God in what we do and our choices. We never give it that power of our free will to Him in order that He selects the person that is best suited for us. Best suited means this, and this is the teaching of God:

The person that He will select for you (woman), you will have the strengths for his weaknesses, and the person He selects for him, he will have the strengths for her weaknesses. Then when the two are put together under the Sacrament of Matrimony, which is different because at the Wedding Feast of Cana, Christ changed the right of marriage to the Sacrament of Matrimony. So that means that in Heaven, when a priest is ordained a priest, that ordination and that Sacrament of Matrimony, in Heaven, they are both held at the same rank in Heaven... same rank... The reason is from the union of the marriage there will be children and you as the parents, are given those children for a short period of time. They are not your children... they are product of your love, but they are God´s children. They are given to you for a short period of time to teach and to watch over. That is the responsibility of the parent.

When a priest is ordained, he is given a parish, he is given a flock, that is his responsibility to teach and watch over and guard... same responsibility...same thing... that´s why in Heaven it´s so important these two things.

It is the teaching of God´s children about God, about life and the way that things should be. And that´s why in the Church, there is no divorce. Because it should be that God has joined together these two. Because it says very clearly: `bone of my bone, flesh of my flesh ´. The two shall become one, and we´ve lost the teaching of this... completely lost it. And that is why children today who live together, it offends God because it is not part of the way in which God intends us to live. He intends us to live by including Him, by being loyal to Him, by loving Him. If we exclude Him in everything, if we never ask Him for anything, if we don´t say `please, find me the mate for life, all you have to do is to look at nature, at the animals. How many of those animals mate for life? They have one mate, that´s it, for life... but we... we don´t want to listen to God so we go live with one another and what happens with a woman especially?

It begins with clothing...the immodesty of clothing, it reflects on the marriage many years later... and no one teaches this...no one understands it. A young girls walks down the street... she knowingly has dressed herself to impress and to have herself noticed. So, the clothing today is designed no by children of God but by the enemy of God... and it's designed to show off every single thing in a woman. So, when she walks down the street, how many eyes are on her as she walks? And how many men look at her but don't stop at looking? They fantasize... and what that girl does not understand is the minute that man fantasizes and actually in his mind goes through an act, however quick, not only does he commit a sin, because the Bible tells you very clearly, you might as well have committed the physical act, because the sin is the same... He commits a sin, but also like a magnet, she also has the sin upon her... his sin... So, she walks down the street, the beach or whatever, every day, for an hour at a time... How many of those grievous sins has she attracted to her soul without even knowing that?

And the more grievous sins that are attracted upon the soul, the more the light of God is fading within each person. So, the more you go towards darkness and you don't see it, because the light of God is not there to tell you : `Stop`, because you have excluded that, because you are living a life of grievous sin which keeps attracting more sin, bigger sin, deadlier sins and you have no idea... you are going merrily along your life and you are going deeper and deeper closer to the darkness... you are having affair after affair with men as a girl, and each time you are having an affair, you are losing a piece of your soul. Each time that you give yourself, you lose a piece of yourself. So, by the time you are finally ready to marry, you've given yourself into the society, you have given yourself away completely; there is nothing left...nothing...

And today, one in every two marriages fails. Why? There is no love left...There is no deep feeling in your heart, because you haven't asked God to select for you the person that He has destined for you. You haven't included God in your life, so the light of God isn't in you, because you have purposely thrown that to one side and you have given yourself completely away... completely... by all of these different affairs, you have lived with God knows how many men before your marriage. So, the first rough patch that the marriage hits, that's it! There's nothing...because there is nothing left. You can't love deeply and you cannot understand what a marriage is... all you can understand is that you are cold inside, and everything is me, and you are selfish... and so the marriage splits up; you go your way, he goes his way; but the children... they are pure and they see this... they love their father, they love their mother, they can't understand, they are hurt and on we go... generation after generation. It keeps building and it keeps building and keeps building.

We have lost the teaching of marriage. We have lost the reason for marriage and it's not being taught anymore. It's not being understood anymore. But you get a group of young people and you begin to tell them this and suddenly the smiles go away, and suddenly their faces get very serious and they listen... they listen.

What do you advice for the boys? Because you already taught about the girls, the way they dress. And what about the young boys?

Let me tell you something about men. It doesn't matter what generation. Hormones are hormones in a young man... that's what's always been, that's the way it will always be. But a man may look at a woman who dresses badly or immodestly, because he knows in his mind the probability is that she is very loose; but he will use her, but he doesn't want her. He would never select a wife who dresses like that. He would select someone to use physically who dresses like that. But he would never select someone as a wife... most men... who dresses like that. So that's the first thing that girls have to understand.

The second thing is with boys... they have to understand about fatherhood. They have to be taught about fatherhood; they have to be taught about family. And we are not teaching our children about family. And this is the most serious mistake that civilization is making in these times.

The witness that you give as parents, that impression stays with the child throughout their lives. There is a very famous priest who has a place, I forget whether it is Ohio or... I forget what it is... but the name of their organization, the name of the place was boy's town; and he would take underprivileged boys, orphan boys, and he would bring them into this place and he would teach them. And he said something very, very important. He said: `you give me a child at birth, you give me a boy at birth, and at 6 years old, I will hand him back to you the man... meaning, in that short space from birth to six years, the child learns all of its behavior that is going to develop the rest of his life. So, if the child hears nothing but peace and love and he is taught, then that is how he is going to grow up, and that's how normally he is going to continue to teach his child and his child; if the child grows up with parents that take drugs, parents who are screaming, parents who are fighting all the time, the likelihood is that that boy is going to continue that through his life in his marriage.

And that's why in the Bible there is a phrase that is called sins of the father. And it says: `God says that at the 4th generation; sometimes the 5th generation, that He will let the sins of the father to continue. And if each new son does not understand God enough to want to break that cycle; if they haven't understood it by the 4th or the 5th generation, He will start that line new. He will not allow that line to continue, He will start it new again. He will break that line of the sins of the father, so it does not continue forever in that line... that line will stop... and that is why, the most important thing as parents, is that you understand the first rule.

The first rule is that you have God as the center of your everyday life. He is the core of you, your husband, your wife, your children... the core...the center of your life.

The second, the family. The family must revolve around that core, on a daily basis, united, strong, caring, loving and witnesses, living disciples of Christ.

And the third, your faith, your Church. That the three are one, that you cannot have a proper family life... proper... without these three elements. That if God is missing as the center of everyone's daily life, the other two eventually are going to collapse. And this is what's happening in the world today. Most of the world has abandoned God. Most of the world has said: `I want to conduct myself the way I want to do it, I don't want to be told; I don't want to hear this nonsense about the Ten Commandments. The Ten Commandments were for civilizations thousands of years old that were ignorant and had to be controlled by laws. It has nothing to do with us today because we are so far advanced over those times; we are so intelligent, we don't need this control; this religious control and we will do things the way that we feel they should be done.'

They have excluded God completely. All of the teaching of all the generations that has come before them, they have taken the decision to ignore them and to bury it. Cause it doesn't apply for them because they have turned into selfish, self-centered human beings. They've excluded God. They've purposely abandoned Him, they have taken the spirit that regarded, resides in them and they have buried it so deeply, that the light of God just ... they don't understand anymore what they have done. And this is what's happening in the world.

The family then suffers. There are so many arguments between parents now in front of the children. There are so many bad examples... both parents are working in many cases because they want to have what their neighbor has. They can't live without it, so the wife must work, every hour of every day. The husband must work every hour of every day; the child is neglected, he's put in front of the television as companionship, as the teacher. And what is the child learning on television? Nothing about God, not a thing...and the family is disintegrating and we are losing the knowledge of family, of unity, of love, of support, of caring...we are losing it completely. And this is all purposeful things of the enemy of God to destroy the family, to destroy the faith and then to destroy the belief in God. And you can do it very easily if you take God out of the family, then you take away the family and it just centers on the individual. That's it. They become God. In a world that they are creating that is nothing more than materialism and consumerism and me, me, me, me... and it doesn't matter about the starving people anymore, that's their problem. It doesn't matter about the corrupt politicians anymore, because unless it affects me personally, let them get on with it. And there is silence, silence, silence. And everything is around money, and possessions and the world is just going deeper and deeper away from God. And these things are being... the knowledge of the truth about life, that knowledge has been eradicated. The truth about men and women, the truth about marriage, the truth about life, the reason for life. The reason for God, that He has created you... All that, is missing.

We are raising children that have no idea of any of this. Nothing... and that's why now we have the highest rate of suicide ever recorded among children. Because they are growing up in a world that is dark, without God and they know there is something missing and they are not being taught. And one day, as parents, all of us are going to be held accountable before God for what we did with the precious gift that we were given.

- What's the significance of the age of 12 to 13? Why is that age and not maybe later? Or earlier?

- 12 to 13 is the time when you, a boy changes, a girl changes, and they stop being children and they become young adults. That's when the hormones start to kick in. That when you know, things happen to their bodies and it is a very, very impressionable time.

- And they still listen to you?

Oh yes, yes, yes... That's when they begin to question, that's when they begin to reject in many cases.

- First my responsibility now as a father or grandfather is to make sure my daughters tell their sons and daughters?

- Today is a matter of you know the truth, you know the responsibility, but many, many people would tell you 'no'. You don't get involved... the whole thing is 'don't get involved' and that's where we are going wrong also as grandparents. We can see what our children are doing wrong with their children, but we hear the words 'don't interfere'. But as a family, it is your duty to point out that when people are going away from God, the consequences of that and the action of that. They are actually going away from God, and if you see your grandchildren being led down that path, then as a grandparent it is your duty to do whatever you can in a reasonable and responsible way to let your children know and in some cases even to teach your grandchildren where they are not being taught by their own parents to make sure that they are given the right to life.

- But if the mother and father do not teach the children, will they listen to the grandmother?

- Always... always... a child is someone who is filled with love. Who will listen to you because you are his grandmother or her grandfather or the father or the mother. They trust implicitly what you say, as children, because of love. They would never think that you would tell them something wrong or show them something wrong so, innately, whatever you do, they do. Because they would never think that you would purposely harm them in any way. What they don't understand today is, many parents are teaching children so many things which are wrong and the children are blindly following them because they love them. And they would never, ever think that their parents would show them ways which would put them into harm or teach them wrongly. So, they just blindly follow whatever their parents do.

There is a very famous saying that says: 'for those who believe, no proof is necessary; for those who do not believe, no proof is possible'. So, for parents who have never been brought up with faith, the chance is that they are going to teach their children exactly the same; because they don't believe, they can't believe. And that's where people who know, it is their responsibility to tell their brothers and sisters in the world the truth of what you know in your soul.

- Thank you John.

- Two countries in the world that the Catholic Church owes the most to is Italy and Ireland. It was the fathers in Italy and Ireland that every night said: `Come on now, all of you; we are going into the front room and we are going to say the Rosary´.

-It wasn't the mothers, it was the fathers?

- The fathers...for generations, where the child was brought up saying the Rosary. It was the father. But today the problem is that excuse me, the feminist movement; the stopping a father being a father, that the father has no longer the authority in the house, that God gave him originally... he no longer has that authority...

Everything is equal and the rule of the husband now has been watered down, watered down, watered down; so that when the father says something now in a home, it's not taken the same way it was taken before, the way it was meant to be. And when I say that, some women they go nuts, they go crazy...

- Because it's the truth...

- Well, yes, the father no longer has the authority that they should have in a home.

- Children are smarter, because they play that game where the father would say :“look you go do this and they'll go and say, “let me ask mom”...

- The mother is to teach the child; the father is to ensure that the teaching is being done and when it reaches a level that the child begins to reject that teaching; then it is the father who enforces the rule of God in the home. “No, you will not do this”. But they have stopped saying that. They've let the child get away with whatever they want to from an early age running and yelling and screaming and misbehaving... and the fathers do nothing. There's no control, there is no... nothing... they just let the child.

“No, I'm to be his friend”... Sorry, you are not to be his friend... you are to be his father. Not his friend, his father. When he becomes a man, then you can be his friend; but right now, it is important that you be his father, not his friend as a child and we have lost all of this, all of this...

And it's something that is so... and that's why families are falling apart, because there is no delineation, there is no authority, everyone is equal and everyone has the same rights and same responsibilities and the man is not respected as he should be any longer in the home. The mother is working... I'm sorry, that's not the mother's role. A mother's role is to bring up the child, to teach the child. Not to supply the bread on the table. That is the job of the man.

- It's the way it always was...

- The mother is to make a good home. To teach the children, to love the child, to have time, to show the child. It's the father who is to bring home the bread on the table, and to be there when enforcement needs... the authority needs to be imposed. That the teaching, the important things need to be done... why? Calling the family together and say: "Alright now, everyone stop right now what you are doing and come, we are going to say the Rosary".
